Syllabus Exercise

The first key topic is netiquette. With everything dealing with classes being online and virtual now, I think that it is very important to keep good netiquette. This will very much affect me because I will have to always stay aware and make sure to be typing in understandable and complete sentences rather than a text-like message. I will make sure to always keep this in mind and try my best to have good netiquette.

The second key topic is academic honesty. With there being a line between helping and cheating I will make sure to never cheat or be academically dishonest. While I do not plan to ever commit academic dishonesty I will make sure that if I have used something learned from a different source that I will make sure to cite and reference the source. I will definitely make it a number one priority to make sure that nothing will be falsified or changed and will always be cited if used.

The third key topic is medical-related absences. Having the scare of the pandemic and illness lurking around the corner with it being the wintertime, this seems to be a key topic to understand and read through. While I do not plan on missing class, I find it helpful to know the steps to take in the case where I am sick. I think that the biggest thing learned from this key topic and other sections in the syllabus is that we must be transparent and hold good communication.

The fourth key topic is course design. Being formatted a little differently from normal classes, this class consists of 75% assignments and 25% quizzes. Regarding the assignments, I will make sure to read and double check that all commenting standards and code cleanliness is up to standard. Making sure to follow the information given, I am also aware that quizzes will not be given a make-up quiz, and one should not be expected.

The fifth key topic is grading policies. I do understand the cutoffs of the grade and will adhere to make sure that there is no confusion. From what I gathered from reading this section I do not think that there will be a curve under any circumstance and should expect a straight grade from the scale given. I will also make sure to not turn in homework late. It is explained in this section that late homeworks will be given one class period after the due date with a 10% as its penalty.
